Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) Policy

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) (20 U.S.C. 1232g; 34 CFR Part 99) is a federal law that protects the privacy of student education records. The law applies to all schools that receive funds under an applicable program of the U.S. Department of Education.

FERPA gives parents certain rights with respect to their children's education records. These rights transfer to the student when he or she reaches the age of 18 or attends a school beyond the high school level. Students to whom the rights have transferred are "eligible students."

Eligible students have the right to inspect and review their education records maintained by the school. Schools are not required to provide copies of records for review, unless, for reasons such as great distance, it is impossible for eligible students to otherwise review the records. Schools may charge a fee for copies.

Additionally, eligible students have the right to request that a school correct records which they believe to be inaccurate or misleading or otherwise in violation of the students privacy rights. If the school decides not to amend the record, the eligible student then has the right to a formal hearing. After the hearing, if the school still decides not to amend the record, the eligible student has the right to place a statement with the record setting forth his or her view about the contested information. Requests regarding any of the activities described above must be made in writing to the Student Service Office. American National University makes the following forms available in the Student Service Office for these purposes - "Student Request to Review, Change or Receive a Copy of Education Records," and "Student Request for Formal Hearing to Change Education Records."

Generally, schools must have written permission from an eligible student in order to release personally identifiable information from that student's education record. However, FERPA allows schools to disclose those records, without consent, to the following parties or under the following conditions (34CFR 99.31). Accordingly, it is the policy of American National University to release information to these parties:

- American National University school officials with legitimate educational interest;
- Other educational institutions that have requested the information and in which the student seeks or intends to enroll or is already enrolled so long as the disclosure is for purposes related to the students enrollment or transfer;
- Specified officials for audit or evaluation purposes;
- Appropriate parties in connection with financial aid to a student;
- Organizations conducting certain studies for or on behalf of the school;
- Accrediting organizations;

- To comply with a judicial order or lawfully issued subpoena;
- Appropriate officials in cases of health and safety emergencies;
- State and local authorities, within a juvenile justice system, pursuant to specific State Law;
- To persons or agencies requesting “directory information” (see below);

American National University faculty, staff, and certain agencies to which American National University outsources institutional services who may require information from a student’s education record in order to carry out their official duties. They are considered school officials with legitimate educational interest in those cases.

Students wishing to provide consent of release of their information to a party other than those listed above should complete form “Identity Authentication Process and Student Consent to Disclose Records,” available in the campus Student Service Office.

Schools may disclose “directory” information without consent. Directory information is defined by American National University as a student’s name, address, telephone listing, electronic mail address, photograph, date of birth, place of birth, major field of study, grade level, enrollment status (e.g., undergraduate or graduate, full-time or part-time) dates of attendance, participation in officially recognized activities, degrees, honors, awards received, and the most recent institution attended. However, schools must tell eligible students about directory information and allow them a reasonable amount of time from the date of the notification to request that the school not disclose their directory information. American National University makes such notification annually, or more frequently in the event of any change to the designation of directory information, allowing students 10 business days from the date of the notification to request that the school not disclose directory information. Additionally, students may make a request related to the release of their directory information at any time by submitting a written request to the Student Service Office. The “Directory Information” form, available in the campus Student Service Office, may be used for this purpose.

Eligible students who believe that the school has failed to comply with the requirements of FERPA may file a complaint with the Department of Education at the following address: Family Policy Compliance Office, U.S. Department of Education, 400 Maryland Avenue, S.W., Washington, DC 20202-4605
