

Business Partnership Grant & Application

As part of an ongoing commitment to building a stronger workforce, American National University allocates money to its Business Partnership Grant.

What is the Business Partnership Grant?

A program in which American National University partners with businesses whose employees enroll at ANU. The university may contribute up to one dollar for every two dollars contributed by the employer toward tuition.

How the Grant Works for Students

Who is eligible to participate?

Anyone participating in a tuition assistance program of an employer actively partnering with American National University. Students enrolled in any of ANUs diploma or degree programs (full-time or part-time) are eligible.

Can this grant be used in conjunction with other scholarships or grants?

Yes. The grant may be part of a comprehensive financial assistance package based on an employee's individual need.

How the Grant Works for Businesses

If your company currently has a tuition assistance program, the university simply applies its contribution as a credit to the student's account once payment is received. ANU matches up to one dollar for every two dollars the company contributes toward tuition charges.

There's no contract to sign.

The grant is continuing and will be recalculated each term for as long as there is a continuing agreement between the company and American National University. Each student's Tuition Assistance / Business Partnership Grant (BPG) is handled individually. You simply sign the BPG agreement, which states that your employee is eligible for tuition assistance based on your company's terms and conditions and levels of reimbursement.

How can my company become a business partner?

To add this benefit to your employee offerings, contact the Financial Services department of American National University.
